INTRODUCING THE NEW CANADIAN ENVIRONMENTAL LAW BLOG

July 3, 2019

If you have questions about environmental regulation of contaminated sites, then Harper Grey's new Canadian Environmental Law Blog will be a great resource for you. Created to provide immediate access to current and practical information, the blog covers a range of topics from transactions involving contaminated lands and contaminated site remediation to the pursuit of key regulatory instruments and recovery of costs of remediation.

Richard Bereti, chair of Harper Grey's Environmental Group, said, "We are always looking for ways to share our expertise with property owners and developers, industrial operators, REITs, lenders, insurers and environmental consultants and contractors. While our Environmental Group is frequently presenting and publishing, this blog enables us to reach many people on their schedule." The blog went live today and is located here.
